

- a) Show that the unit square can be partitioned into n smaller squares if n is large enough.
- b) Let $d \geq 2$. Show that there is a constant $N(d)$ such that, whenever $n \geq N(d)$, a d -dimensional unit cube can be partitioned into n smaller cubes.